

Final year higher education scholarship

The NT Department of Education (the department) is committed to building a skilled allied health workforce to support schools' wellbeing and inclusion practices and enable all students to engage, grow and achieve their full potential.

The final year higher education scholarship supports the recruitment and retention of allied health practitioners in areas that the department has identified as experiencing workforce shortages.

The scholarships aim to help local NT students to complete their studies and commence their career with the department.

Up to 4 scholarships are awarded annually to eligible NT based Charles Darwin University students in their final year of study in a relevant entry to practice allied health degree. The allied health professions that are eligible for the scholarship program in 2024 include Psychology and Social Work.

The scholarship provides financial support of $15,000 for recipients who complete their studies and a guarantee of employment in a permanent Professional level 1 (P1) or level 2 (P2) allied health position in the department.
